London Bach Society announces a special concert in the 27th annual Bachfest
Festival theme: "Bach and Luther: Masters and Servants"
To mark the 500th Anniversary of Luther's Reformation (1517-2017)

Luther2017.de

Every evening after supper, the Reformer and Theologian Martin Luther would gather his family together to sing motets. Luther also provided a German-texted Mass, chorales, supported congregational and community singing and retained two movements of the Latin Ordinary for Services to create the "Lutheran Mass". In similar fashion, Bach and his family would make music together at home and in considering the over-riding musical needs of the Lutheran Church, the composer provided cantatas, passions, oratorios....and five Lutheran Masses. Our opening concert to commemorate the Reformation 500th features motets by Bach, Heinrich Schütz and Max Reger, plus one of Bach's settings of the shorter Mass, the Mass in F BWV 233, movements of which are reworkings from earlier cantatas, including Cantata BWV 102 (Trinity 10, Leipzig 1726) and BWV 40 (Christmas, Leipzig 1723).
